Bioethics in Switzerland: Past, Present, and Future

September 18 2026, 14:00h to 18:00h, House of Academies, Bern

This live event of the Early Career Bioethicists Network (ECBN) aims to bring together early-career bioethicists from across Switzerland to reflect on the past, present, and future of bioethics in Switzerland.

Through an interactive panel discussion and small-group working sessions with experienced experts from different areas of bioethics, participants will have the opportunity to explore questions related to career development, mentorship, professionalisation, interdisciplinary collaboration, and the evolving role of ethics in healthcare, academia, policy, and society.

The event seeks to create a space for exchange across generations of bioethicists, strengthen professional networks, and identify what the next generation of bioethicists may need in order to shape the future of the field in Switzerland.

The ECBN is a dynamic community dedicated to addressing the unique challenges faced by early and mid-career bioethicists in Switzerland. Our mission is to provide a platform for peer-to-peer exchange that encompasses a wide range of issues, interests, and needs specific to our members. Our goals are threefold: to create a safe and supportive environment for connecting and sharing ideas, to build a professional network, and to promote the development and visibility of early career bioethicists.

We look forward to welcoming you in Bern on 18 September 2026.

See you soon,

The ECBN core team members
